Description:

Hastings may be a housecat, but he has a serious mission: to raise the social status of the feline species. Born the runt of the litter in an apartment overflowing with cats, Hastings was inspired early in life to make his mark upon the world. In this autobiography, he recounts how he rose from humble beginnings to become the cultured, erudite leader whose vision now inspires so many felines around the world. He describes how he taught himself to read and write, how he developed his unique vision for the betterment of feline society and how he established the famed feline community Catamenia. This is the insightful life story of an extraordinary cat told with warmth, humor and, yes, humanity.

GREAT BOOK! Very imaginatively written. Look forward to seeing more from this author. He has written about one really cool house cat! Hastings adventures and ruminations on life are quite interesting.
